Tangents of curves and differentiability of functions

Marianna Csörnyei

One of the classical theorems of Lebesgue tells us that Lipschitz functions on the real line are differentiable almost everywhere. We study possible generalizations of this theorem and some interesting geometric corollaries.