THOMAS WILLIAMSON '86

Kenneth Bjork Distinguished Professor of Sociology and Anthropology

Thomas Williamson '86 has taught at St. Olaf since 2001, following graduate study at the University of Michigan. In fact, his second day of teaching was on September 11 of that year. His research and teaching initially focused on Asia, including five years working in Malaysia, along with time in Thailand, Indonesia, and Japan. More recently, he has inquired into the anthropology of health, offering courses on medical anthropology and the intersection of drugs and addiction.

Williamson enjoys team-teaching, and has co-taught courses with colleagues in history, religion, philosophy, neuroscience, economics, and Asian studies. He also likes creating new courses, and has taught more than 20 different ones in his 25 years at St. Olaf. He taught in the Science Conversation and Asian Conversation sequences, and enjoys teaching the First-Year Seminar. His most recent FYS was called Life With AI. He helped create and run an ongoing summer internship program with the Piper Center for Vocation and Career called Social Impact Scholars and is always available for an independent study with a student who has a good idea.

To support his research, he has received two Fulbright research grants, leading to publications on Malaysian health care, automobility, nationalism, and forms of political violence. He has also published articles on his pedagogical approach to anthropology. His most recent project investigates the dynamics of American higher education, written with a colleague at the University of Minnesota. Titled The Incoherent Campus, the book examines the complexity of combining faculty, staff, and students into an effective institution.

Williamson has served as the department chair of Sociology and Anthropology as well as Social Work and Family Studies. He highly values collaborative work shaping curriculum at St. Olaf.

Williamson lives in St. Paul with his wife, two daughters, and neurotic cat. His student experience at St. Olaf benefited from Paracollege study and the Term in Asia, as well as patient professors and loyal friends.

THE ACADEMIC PROCESSION

The traditional academic procession introduces many of the more formal and significant events at St. Olaf, as it does on most college and university campuses. Although the history of wearing distinctive apparel as an indication of scholarship and academic rank dates back to 1321, the practice was not adopted throughout the United States until about 1900.

The cap worn almost universally in academic processions is the Oxford cap, better known as the mortarboard. It is always black. A different style, called the Cambridge cap, resembles a large beret. The use of a dark robe in academic processions is thought to have arisen from the clerical practice of wearing a cape or mantle in religious processions in the 12th and 13th centuries, when universities arose from cathedral schools.

Traditionally, gowns are also black. However, a number of universities have adopted alternate gowns that use their traditional school color. The academic hoods, worn around the neck and down the back of the gown, are in the colors of the college or university conferring the degree. The binding or edging of the hood is usually distinctive of the subject to which the degree pertains: economics, copper; education, light blue; fine arts, brown; humanities, white; law, purple; library science, lemon; medicine, green; music, pink; nursing, apricot; philosophy, dark blue; physical education, sage green; science, golden yellow; social science, cream; social work, citron; speech, silver gray; and theology, scarlet.
